

Excerpt from A Two Years Journal in New York: And Part of Its Territories in America Of the author of this description of New York in 1678-80 neither the year of his birth nor the date of his death is known. Almost equally scanty is our knowledge of his life. His modesty veiled his authorship of his single contribution to literature under his mere initials. His identity was not revealed for over a century and a half, and then, when his little work again saw the light in a modern edition, by a curious fatality or caprice, the spelling of his name was changed and was entered in bibliographies and catalogues under a form which he never used and for which there is no authority. In the narrative the reader is informed that the author sailed from England for New York May 27, 1678, with Sir Edmund Andros; that he was there minister to the English, and that after his return he lived at Alford in Lincolnshire.
