

Memoirs of the Life, Writings and Charcter of the Late Thomas Hinderwell (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Memoirs of the Life, Writings and Charcter of the Late Thomas Hinderwell Having learned from the literary characters of the town and neighbourhood of Scarborough that no memoir of its Historian was to be expected from their classic pens; as a tribute to the virtues of a good man, and a great benefactor to the place of his birth, and thinking with the poet, that He should not sleep in his lone grave Unwept and unrecorded, I commenced the following biographical account, as a performance of duty, and in my zeal to commemorate the life of one so lately deceased, and whose amiable deeds are so fresh in the remembrance of his townsmen, I have imposed no very pleasing task upon my feelings.
