

Readings on Herman Melville (Greenhaven Press Literary Companion Series)

A unique anthology providing an accessible resource to students researching the life and works of Herman Melville, one of the world's great literary artists. Contributing writers' essays taken from a wide variety of sources are coupled with an in-depth biography of Melville. Each essay is introduced by a concise summation of the author's themes and insights. Includes an annotated table of contents, a chronology of Melville's life as well as important and concurrent historical events. There is also a bibliography offering the student a gateway to further study and research.

Titles in the series: Greenhaven Press Literary Companion to Herman Melville was born in New York City on August 1, 1819, the third child. Majority of Melville's literary work begins with his first literary achievement, Uncle Tom's Cabin. Unfortunately, the reading audience of the nineteenth-century was not receptive. Melville uses Bartleby's passive resistance to show how fragile the lawyer is.
